

TERMS OF USAGE

Intesa Sanpaolo Bank Albania Sh.A (hereinafter referred to as “The Bank”) is entitled to exercise any property right and related rights on this Website. The Bank’s Website provides information and data on banking and financial services offered and executed by The Bank in its daily banking activity; achievements; projected strategy; financial performance, etc.

The Bank hereby authorizes you (hereinafter “the users”) to use the Bank’s Website based on your consent and commitment to comply with the following conditions:

Although the Bank’s objective is to provide the users with correct, up-to-date information and data on its Website, and it considers the data and information published in its Website as reliable, the Bank does not assume any liability toward you (users) regarding the accuracy, completeness and up-to-date ness of the information and data presented.

The information and data released on the Bank’s Website is of informative and not binding nature. Unless otherwise clearly provided, the information and data published in the Bank’s Website shall not be considered as a legal act designated to establish a legal relation between the Bank and the users. Consequently, the data and information published in the Website shall not be considered as an offer, recommendation, or invitation to offer.

The Bank shall not be held liable for any injuries (financial loss, damages for losses or lost income etc) incurred by the use in whatever form and for whatever purpose, of the Bank’s Website.

The Bank reserves the right to determine, issue and amend conditions regulating use of the Bank’s Website. Any intervention in the technical substance or content, without prior written approval of the Bank, is strictly forbidden.

All materials published or presented in the Bank’s Website, including logos, images, press releases, documents etc, are the property of the Bank. Consequently, such materials may not be copied, reproduced, downloaded, modified, transferred, and used in other websites without the prior written approval of the Bank.